LITTLE BEAM TRAWLER.

Sloop Startle Trying English Way of Fishing.

Equipped with Regular Beam Trawl, Etc.

For the past few days the little sloop Startle, Capt. Trott, has been lying at Bennett's coal wharf waiting for a good chance to go out and drag the bottom for fish along shore, for she is now fitted as a regular beam trawler, a miniature of sch. Resolute of 10 years ago and the second New England fishing vessel to be thus equipped.

Thus far there has been no chance to fish on account of bad weather, but Capt. Trott and his crew of husky Gloucester fishermen are confident of success.

The result of this innovation in shore fishing will be watched with much interest.

Herring Notes.

The Bay of Islands, N. F., Western Star, says that the ovtlook for the fishermen is not bright. For nearly a fortnight there has not been a single arrival for herring. But for the barge in North Arm, the Canadians who are putting up herring and the Newfoundland packers, the fishery would practically be at a standstill. The frozen fleet has yet to arrive; but the appearance of herring in good numbers at Fortune Bay will turn a large proportion of the fleet in that direction. The weather has been mild for some days and even if the vessels were there just now they could not secure frozen cargoes. Then there is the uncertainty as to the presence of the fish when the frost really does come. And the unfortunate condition of affairs that prevailed last year when so many vessels were frozen up near Woods Island will somewhat deter the vessels from remaining long on the coast.
