SCH. ATLANTA FROZEN IN.

Fast in Ice at Pleasant Cove, Bay of Islands.

FIVE MILE FROM OPEN WATER.

Will Probably Remain There Until Spring Comes.

Sch. Atalanta of this port, recently run into and badly damaged at North Arm as previously stated in the TIMES, is now frozen in at Bay of Islands and the chances of her getting out before spring are considered slight.

A dispatch to the owners, Samuel G. Poole & Son's yesterday afternoon from Capt. Wadding, master of the craft, states that she is fast in the ice at Pleasant Cove, one mile from Birchy Cove and is five miles from open water with no prospect of getting out. He will get her alongside of a wharf if possible.

Pleasant Cove is in the Humber Arm of the bay, which always freezes before any other part.

FISHING BY ELECTRIC LIGHT. It is reported that Guiseppe Pino, a Genoese Italian has patented an invention which enables fishermen to see through the water and locate a school of fish. One of the nautical magazines has an illustrated article, which shows an electric light equipment, in which the light penetrates the waters of the ocean to a great depth and throws back upon the deck of the vessel a picture of the objects below. In this way fish can be located so definitely that it greatly aids in making a good catch.

The electric light which the Italian inventor has put upon the market has penetrated to the depth of 90 feet and has been applied in the south in search of hidden wrecks. It carries a powerful raising machine which is capable of raising to the surface a good-sized vessel.

If it is found practicable in locating fish in the depths below, it will be worthy of attention on the part of the fishing owners. Its use certainly will have an effect to insure larger catches of fish and more certainty in the business than now. Our fishing owners will watch for the further development of catching fish by electric light with the idea of using it if it proves practicable.

FISHERMEN ARE SCARCE.

And Herring Prospect Now Not Too Good.

AT THE BAY OF ISLANDS.

Three More Crafts on the Way Home with Full Cargoes.

After a lapse of quite a few days, some telegrams have been received from Bay of Islands, N. F., and the news contained was not of the most encouraging nature.

One telegram from a thoroughly reliable source stated that no vessels were frozen in. Herring were scarce in the Middle Arm and rather plenty in the North Arm. The weather had been very bad for some time but Wednesday was mild and moderate. Sch. J. J. Flaherty sailed yesterday with a full load of salt herring and schs. Maxine Elliott and Tattler were nearly loaded.

Another dispatch also from a reliable source to Mr. Orlando Merchant stated both herring and fishermen were scarce and the prospect at present was poor. The weather had been very poor. Schs. Lottie G. Merchant and Lewis H. Giles sailed yesterday for home with full cargoes of frozen herring. Sch. Henry M. Stanley has secured a load of salt herring and was waiting for a cabin load of frozen before starting for home.

Orlando Merchant's fleet has certainly got the cream of the frozen herring business so far this season, three of them, schs. Richard Wainwright, Avalon and Constellation, being the very first of the fleet to arrive. Among those on the way now, Mr. Merchant has two loaded with frozen herring and a cargo of salt herring about to start.

PRESERVING CODFISH.

Congressman Gardner Interested in Legislation.

LOOKING AFTER GLOUCESTER.

Wants Amendment Allowing the Present Method.

A despatch from Washington yesterday says that pure food legislation was again considered by the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce today. Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, resumed his argument of Tuesday in favor of the pending bill. The doctor reiterated his statement that the preponderance of expert evidence was to the effect that salicylic acid is injurious.

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts stated in the committee that this district produced $2,000,000 worth of dried codfish annually; that this fish is all preserved by a small percentage of borax, but he maintained that this preservative was eliminated by soaking the fish over night. Mr. Gardner suggested an amendment permitting the same method of preserving used.

RUINING SHORE FISHERIES.

Commissioner Nickerson of Maine Says Dogfish Play Sad Havoc.

A dispatch from Augusta, Me., says:

The Hon. A. R. Nickerson of Boothbay Harbor, state commissioner of sea and shore fisheries, said that the scourge of the Maine coast at present is the dogfish, which has never before been so plentiful or stayed so late. Within a week a fisherman set his trawls near Bristol and got a dogfish on nearly every hook. If it keeps on in this way, the dogfish will ruin everything in the fishing line.

The price of course tickets will be $1 and single admission 35 cents, and as the course will be for the benefit of the High school, it will doubtless receive a good patronage. Mr. Manley has lectured on "The Merchant of
