Halifax Mackerel Market Cornered.

The Halifaz Chronicle says: A representative of some American speculators who is in the city, is buying up all the salt mackerel that he can get. When he arrived here there was somewhat of a slump in the market, mackerel selling for $4 50 per barrel, and the fishermen found some difficulty in disposing of them for that figure. Since the American's arrival prices have jumped up greatly. The price of the fish kept going up at the rate of fifty cents per bbl. until now the fishermen are realizing $7 50 on every bbl. The American also pays for the barrels and gives an advance of fifteen cents on the cost of the barrel. The fishermen are in a happy mood over getting such good prices for their fish.
