Herring Notes.

Some good news from the herring fleet at Newfoundland was received yesterday, when a telegram came to D. B. Smith & Co. from Capt. William Corkum at Placentia Bay, stating that sch. Alice R. Lawson had secured an excellent cargo of large frozen herring. The telegram also stated that sch. Priscilla Smith was partly loaded and that four other vessels were there, having 500 barrels between them.

Schs. Hattie A. Heckman and Grayling are here this morning from Bay of Islands, N. F., with full cargoes of frozen herring.

Sch. Dreadnaught will go to Boston with her cargo of frozen herring.

The following are from the Western Star, Bay of Islands, N. F., of January 15

"A number of American vessels are now in the arms of this bay loading herring. The captains are paying as high as $3 per barrel in order to secure speedy loading. Most of the fishermen have returned home owing to the loss of gear. Other men who returned when the first ice formed on the Humber Arm, are refitting for the fishery and are leaving daily for the Arms. Vessels are now arriving from Fortune and Placentia Bays Herring in the latter places keep out in the deep water owing to the mild weather. Here the vessels will readily secure full fares. Four vessels sailed from North Arm yesterday for Gloucester with full cargoes of pickled herring. Owing to the mild weather no herring have been frozen here for nearly a week. Ere the season closes it is estimated that the catch will be in the vicinity of 60,000 barrels, which at the standard price of $1 25 per barrel will mean that $75,000 will have been circulated.

"The herring fishery at Placentia Bay is almost a blank up to date. Sound Island and vicinity, which for years has been a centre for herring, is practically deserted, not 200 barrels being taken for the season.

"The herring fishery, which is now over, has yielded Bonne Bay people about $15,000. This is considered a conservative estimate.

"The last of the American vessels left Bonne Bay last week with frozen herring. They would have loaded before this had the weather not been so indifferent."
