SEASON'S CATCH MACKEREL FAR BEHIND 1936

The catch of the mackerel fleet to date is far behind any year in the last five years. Last week the boats did a little better and landed 1,659,000 pounds of fresh mackerel, the best catch of any week so far this season. Recent arrivals were a little smaller in size and were caught 50 to 60 miles south southwest of Block Island and No Man's Land.

In the corresponding week last year the mackerel fleet landed 536,400 pounds of fresh mackerel, caught mostly in the vicinity of No Man's Land and South Shoal lightship.

Total catch of mackerel to date has been only 3,943,000 pounds as compared with 8,328,000 pounds in 1936; 5,009,000 pounds in 1935; 6,054,000 pounds in 1934; 8,075,000 pounds in 1933.
