LOOKING FOR AMBERGRIS.

Numerous Parties Searching for Substance Along the Beaches.

The ambergris expert from New York city did not get here yesterday to examine the peculiar substance which was found by several local gentlemen, as exclusively published in the TIMES.

Mr. Henry D. Corliss and some of the other men were searching over the beaches and when they returned to the city proper last night, they had about a pound and a half of the alleged ambergris. Mr. Corliss made the statement in the Board of Trade rooms last night that he had been offered $160 by Theodore Metcalf & Co. of Boston for his small piece and had refused to accept the offer.

The news of the finding of the product has excited the curiosity of hundreds of people all over the cape, and now almost everybody is interested in the "find," and hope the possessors of the substance will be liberally rewarded

Sept I

Another gentleman whose name was not mentioned yesterday who has some of the supposed ambergris, is John H. Harris employed at Henry O. Nelson's store. Mr. Harris is not buoyed up false hopes, but is simply keeping the substance for examination. He states that if the product is ambergris, he will be money in, and if not he has lost only his time and has certainly enjoyed the walks over Cape Ann's beautiful beaches.

As soon as the exclusive news of the find became known through its publication in the TIMES, many men started from their homes to search for some of the valuable substance. Today every beach on the Cape will be tramped over by men whose eyes will not be on the beautiful surroundings, but will be strained in the search for the odoriferous substance which has done so much to increase the earnings of many deep sea fishermen.

Dogfish in South Channel.

Dogfish have appeared again on the South channel fishing banks as a menance to fishermen. Capt. John Hickey of sch. Francis J. O'Hara, Jr., which arrived at Boston yesterday morning, reported that on Tuesday morning he lost $160 worth of trawls. More than half of his trawls were carried away by hungry dogfish, which do not balk at eating bait, fish, hook and lines. Small sharks were also numerous and aided in the destruction of part of the schooner's fishing outfit.
