Only one arrival made the Boston fish pier over the holiday, sch. Fannie Belle Atwood putting in an appearance yesterday afternoon with a small fare.

HOW WAR HELPS N. F. FISH TRA

Portugal Removes Old R-strictions—Nova Scotia Benefited As Well.

A St. John's, N. F., dispatch sa

A curious effect of the war is bearing on the future of the fish of Newfoundland and maritime Ca-da. The war has revived the an alliance between Great Britain Portugal, and a result has been a discrimination made by Portugal many years, against fish from Ne-foundland and the Canadian mari provinces has been removed.

The products of this region now admitted to Portuguese mar on an equality with those of all countries.

Until hostilities broke out in Eu the chief beneficiary of the condi then existing was Norway, which cause of general trade with Port enjoyed an advantage in the m of duty charged in dry fish ent Portuguese harbor, equivalent from 25 to 35 cents per quintal pounds, according to the fluctua in the rate of exchange. This gav Norwegians sufficient advantage permit them to undersell the N foundland Canadian product. R presentations had been made s times by the governments of N foundland and Canada in an effo secure the removal of this ban but without avail until after the began, when the desired alter were made.

One reason for the discrimin was the objection of Portugal t custom on this side of the Atla applying to certain wines not duced in Portugal the name wine. The Portuguese gover claimed that the word port only be applied properly to wine that country. Reciprocal conc have been made, Canada and foundland agreeing to Portugal in this respect. The imports to Newfoundland last year am to only about 3000 gallons, valu $5000, whereas the exports codfish from Newfoundland to gal amounted to 200,000 quintal ued at $1,250,000.

Next to Brazil, Portugal is th est purchaser of the Newfou commodity.

It is expected that similar cessions will be secured fro Spanish, Italian and Greek ments in the near future, an the foreign trade in codfish w greatly increased next year.
