Fishing Fleet Movements.

Schs Annie Greenlaw, Effie M. Morrissey, arrived at Canso on Monday. Sch. Slade Gerton cleared from that port the same day.
 Sch. Nereid cleared from Port Mulgrave for Magdalen Islands on Monday.
 Sch. Emma W. Brown of Boston has fitted for seining under command of Capt Jesse Sears.
 Steamer Joppaite of Newburyport was at Newport Monday and sailed Tuesday, mackerel netting.
 Sch. Anglo Saxon passed Port Mulgrave on Monday bound north.

These figures are approximate, but very close.

Last year there was good mackerel fishing to the southward until July. If it occurs again this year, some of the stocks with which some of the vessels will come home will be beyond all records, that is of course if the fishing holds out or is as good as it was last year.

The little netting sch. Eliza Ellen arrived at New York yesterday afternoon with 430 fresh mackerel.

The first new salt mackerel of the season were landed at New York last week and sold at $12.50 per bbl. The fish run about 180 to a barrel.

MORE MACKEREL.

Two Additional Fares Reported at New York.

An afternoon despatch reports the following additional arrivals of fresh mackerel in New York.

Sch. M. S. Ayer, 5000 fresh mackerel
 Sch. Blanche Irving, 500 mackerel.
 Sch. Mertie and Delmar, of Chatham, for
 Sch. Richard Lester.

MUCH MORE MACKEREL.

Fulton Market Has a Three Days Record Breaker.

MACKEREL MARKET IS DULL

Thirteen More Fine Fares at New York Today.

This is another big mackerel day at New York. Apparently there is no end to the big schools, on which the fleet is working close to New York, and the fish seem to be easy to catch.

Most of the fleet which have been heading southward, hanging away at the wild schools which have been almost impossible to catch, have now joined the fleet near New York and are reaping the benefits thereof as they find the fish fully as large a body and easier to catch.

The arrivals are as follows:
 Gasoline auxiliary sch. Constellation, Capt. Thaddeus Morgan, 400 barrels fresh mackerel. (Ten hours out from the dock)
 Gasoline auxiliary sch. Saladin, Capt. Elar McKown, 200 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Gasoline auxiliary sch. Natalie B. Nickerson, 300 barrels fresh mackerel.

erson of Boothbay, Capt. Eben T. Lew, 200 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Gasoline Auxiliary sch. Veda M. McKown, Capt. George McKown, (maiden trip) 225 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Gasoline auxiliary sch. Victor, Capt. John W. McFarland, 200 barrels.
 Sch. Marguerite Haskins, Capt. Ben Spurling, 350 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Sch. Hattie M. Graham, Capt. John S. Seavey, 400 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Sch. Priscilla Smith, Capt. William Corkum, 150 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Steamer Alice M. Jacobs, 300 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Sch. Rob Roy, Capt. John Hickey, 200 barrels fresh mackerel.
 Sch. Harriett W. Babson, Capt. Charles Maguire, (maiden trip), 150 barrels fresh mackerel.

Sch. Corsair, Capt. George Hamar, 60 barrels fresh mackerel.

Sch. Harry G. French, Capt. Frank Carroll, 2500 fresh mackerel.

Sch. Grayling, Capt. Reuben Cameron, 300 barrels fresh mackerel.

Other despatches give the Natalie B. Nickerson 300 barrels, and Marguerite Haskins 400 barrels, and a dispatch from Capt. Elar McKown of sch. Saladin to the owners, Cunningham & Thompson, calls his trip 400 barrels.

Schs. Richard Lester, Capt. Nelson Fisher, and M. S. Ayer, Capt. Edward Stanley, whose arrival was reported in yesterday's TIMES had 3000 and 5000 mackerel respectively.

Capt. Frank Carroll of sch. Harry G. French, at New York today, telegraphs that he has been with the southern fleet. They found any amount of mackerel, but they were so wild it was next to impossible to catch them.

Capt. John W. McFarland of sch. Victor writes that the fish taken recently are the biggest ever landed at the market, whole great trips being of fish weighing from two to four pounds apiece. He reports lots of fish.

The new gasoline auxiliary sch. Veda M. McKown, Capt. George McKown, is in today with her maiden trip, 225 barrels. She sailed from here last Thursday night.

The new sch. Harriett W. Babson, Capt. Charles Maguire, is also in with her maiden trip today, 150 barrels.

The gasoliners are tearing things up at a great rate. The Constellation, Saladin, Victor and Natalie B. Nickerson have made three trips each this week, making five trips for the three former and six trips for the latter. Sch. Priscilla Smith, Capt. William Corkum, is in again today, being the fifth trip that this peerless sailing craft has made, the last four having been made since Saturday. This shows that Capt. Corkum as well as his vessel is doing a tall hustle.

The fish landed by sch. Rob. Roy today were caught to the southward and are large and mediums.

The market is very dull at New York today. The price opened at 9 and 7 cents for large and mediums and will probably go lower.

Today's receipts at New York figure up a total of 3150 barrels, which together with Tuesday's and Wednesday's big receipts will make the biggest three consecutive mackerel days Fulton market has experienced for years.

Sch. Constellation, Capt. Thaddeus Morgan, counted out 46,000 fish as the result of her big trip Tuesday, stocking $4800.

Sch. Victor, Capt. John N. McFarland counted out 37,000 fish as the result of her big trip, the same day, stocking $3800.
