PROVING A SUCCESS.

Sch. Maxine Elliott Doing Well Seining Codfish.

FISHING OFF SABLE ISLAND.

News of Experiment Has Been Anxiously Awaited.

Encouraging reports have been received from sch. Maxine Elliott and there is every reason to believe that her codfish seining venture will be a success.

The Elliott sailed from here April 11, under command of Capt. Alden Geel, one of the leading dory handline skippers, fitted with a specially constructed seine, to try an experiment, in the success of which her skipper and the owners, D. B. Smith & Co., has the greatest faith, the seining of confish in the shoal waters and on the smooth sandy bottom about Sable island.

The announcement that the vessel was going on such a trip and that her seine gear was being constructed caused widespread interest all along the Atlantic and Nova Scotia coasts, as the experiment was the first of its kind ever attempted by an American or Nova Scotian salt banker. Many well known skippers thought well of the idea, but many laymen could not see how it would ever work.

A few days ago D. B. Smith & Co. received a letter from the skipper of one of their salt bankers which was in at Canso last Thursday. In the letter he said that he had been on board the Maxine Elliott on the Sable island grounds about 10 days before, and from what he saw at the time and what he learned from Capt. Geel, he could state that the experiment was a great success. Capt. Geel was much pleased to think that it had worked so well and considering the time he had been gone, had made a good catch of fish.

Fishing Fleet Movements.

Sch. Talisman is fitting for seining under command of Capt. Benjamin McGray.

Good Fishing and Large Catches.

The warm spell of weather has brought forth the anglers; and the trout and salmon are now rising to the fly in Moosehead, the Rangeleys and the smaller ponds and lakes in Maine and New Hampshire. It is better fishing than at this time last year, because of the late opening season. If you contemplate a trip, send two cents in stamps to the Boston & Maine Passenger Department, Boston, for their book "Fishing & Hunting." It tells you where to go and what to find. A booklet giving the fish and game laws of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Vermont and Canada will be sent free, accompanying.
