Shoals of mackerel have been met with by Grimsby, England, trawlers fishing off the Dogger Bank, and in hauling up the trawls large numbers of these fish have been caught, single vessels taking from 15 to 20 boxes without any effort. According to the Fish Trades Gazette the fish were known as "blind" mackerel, the filmy growth over their eyes doubtless being the cause of their easy capture, while the trawls have been near the surface during hauling.

The fare of sch. Priscilla Smith sold to the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Co. and that of sch. Victor to Davis Bros.

Sch. Charles A. Dwyer seined 10 barrels of medium mackerel in one school off Salvages yesterday and landed them at Rockport.
