Portland Fishing Notes.

While there have been very few small herring caught around Portland this year, there has been but little market for them anyway. All the small herring that have been needed have been landed to the eastward.

As a matter of fact, according to those familiar with the situation, the sardine packers have not wanted very many herring anyway. The pack last year was an immense one and was not wholly disposed of. This year the packers wanted to get along with as few as possible so they have not been disappointed because the small herring have not been numerous off the Maine coast. Last year's pack is to be disposed of first and then more herring will be canned.

Lost at Codroy.

News reached Halifax, November 1, of the total wreck of the Emma White, bound from Griffin's Harbor, Labrador, for Halifax with a cargo of over 2000 quintals of dry codfish. During a terrific hurricane she was driven on Codroy Island, the captain and crew fortunately being saved. A portion of the cargo was saved when the gale subsided.

Another Gill Netter.

Steamer Enterprise has arrived from Newport, R. I. to engage in gill netting.

ONE DRAGGER MADE BIG HAUL

Some good catches of mackerel were made by the draggers since yesterday, nearly 3500 fish having been landed at Rockport.

Yesterday afternoon, sch. Madeline arrived at Rockport with 1865 fish, which is the largest fare since the dragging season opened. Up to noon today, 12 of the boats had arrived, the Madeline having 700 more large fish.

The dealers paid 20 cents a piece wholesale for them.

The arrivals in detail are:

- Sloop Albert Brown, 22 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop N. A. Rowe 3 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop Gardner Heath, 50 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop Natalie, 100 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop Rita, 42 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop Nettie, 5 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop Gypsy Maid, 72 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop Hester, 220 fresh mackerel.
  - Sloop Sabine, 110 fresh mackerel.
  - Sch. Cherokee, 242 fresh mackerel.
  - Sch. Madeline, 700 fresh mackerel.
  - Sch. Madeline, (late yesterday), 1865 fresh mackerel.
- Sales at 20 cents per fish.

WHAT BEAM TRAWLERS DO

An almost steady decrease in the landings of haddock in England from steam trawlers in the North Sea is shown by a table published in a recent issue of the Fish Trades Gazette. A comparison is made of the results of the six years from 1906 to 1911, from which it appears that the total catch decreased from 2,034,882 cwts. in 1906 to 1,380,628 cwts. in 1911. The average catch per day declined from 7.82 to 5.23 cwts. in the said period. The percentages, however, showed an increase in the proportion of large fish.

More Dangers Over the Shoals.

The discovery that the Shovelful and Handkerchief shoals are fast extending into the channel between them and seems likely to close it within a short time adds another danger to shipping around Cape Cod. Capt. O'Brien, coast pilot, also reports that there is a shoal rapidly making up near off Monomoy, which is already a menace to shipping. "Where there is but 14 water at present," said Capt. O'Brien. "A few years ago there was over 40 and the shifting sands are fast making a great shoal spot that will surely cause some craft to fetch up if it is not quickly attended."

Canadian Notes.

Reports from different centres of the Dominion indicate that the fish is well up to the standard for the season. The scarcity of fresh halibut still continues necessitating the use of some frozen stock. White fish is also scarce. Prepared and smoked varieties are showing plenty of activity, and now that the cooler weather has come an increasing demand is looked for. The weather is conducive to a good demand for oysters, which are showing much improvement in quality. There was a little drop in prices in Montreal, which created increased buying in the retail market.

Porto Rico Fish Market.

Our market has a decided downward tendency, owing to the increasing arrivals, also to the heavy rains which have caused sales to fall off considerably. We quote today about as follows on usual "net ex wharf" basis: Codfish, $34@35 per cask 450 lbs.; pollock and haddock, $24 to $25 per cask 450 lbs.

Big Fishing.

The best consecutive two days fishing since the gill netting season opened is that of steamer Ethel, Capt. Willis Curtis. Sunday the craft landed 18,000 pounds of pollock and yesterday she brought in 23,000 pounds more. The Ethel is owned by Lufkin & Tarr of this city.

On the Railways.

The U. S. Fish Commission steamer Blue Wing is on Burnham Brothers railways. Steamer Naomi Bruce and sch. Esther Gray were on Parkhurst's railways yesterday afternoon.

Good Word For Commissioner Bowers.

We sincerely trust the new administration will carefully consider the good work of George M. Bowers, United States Fish Commissioner, before appointing his successor. He has given the country the best service it has ever had in this department and should be retained. While not a scientist, he has surrounded himself with men of known ability in this line. Personally, he is a successful business man and has given the work of the bureau the benefit of his experience, which has made his department the largest and most successful in the world. His valuable contributions to the literature of fishing stamps him as the right man for the place. The commercial fisheries have never been in better condition as the result of his work. The fishermen throughout the country will welcome the continuation of his valuable services. — Fishing Gazette.

Will Can Clams.

In Plymouth recently a company has leased a large area of flats and purposes to establish a clam canning factory nearby to enable it properly and profitably to sell the production of the flats over which they have sole control.

SAW SCHOOLS OF MACKEREL

Between Halibut Point and Isle of Shoals Last Night.

Sch. M. Madeline, Capt. Roland Brewer, which got such fine hauls of mackerel off Rockport, Sunday and Monday nights, is in again today with another fine catch, 1456 big fish in count. Capt. Brewer reports seeing mackerel schools last night between Halibut Point and Isle of Shoals, which is certainly good news. The captain says he believes there are a lot of mackerel in that vicinity.

The other netting arrivals at Rockport this morning are sch. Juliette with 158 fresh mackerel and sleep On Time with 150 fresh mackerel. At Pigeon Cove today is sch. N. A. Rowe with 800 fresh mackerel. Sales at 20 cents.

Portland Fish Notes.

Schooner Bernie and Bessie, which left here about a fortnight since to join the fleet of netters engaged in mackereling at the westward, returned Monday. The schooner did as well as any of the fleet, but the skipper says none of them made any money. On her way home the crew made a catch of 75 large mackerel off the Cape Elizabeth lightship, the first that have been found there for a number of days. It is possible in the event of continued warm weather that during the coming moonlight nights quite a catch may yet be made, although the chances are against it.

The steamer Elthier, which has been engaged in catching herring this fall has been hauled up at Central wharf for the winter. The Per was due last evening from Boothbay and will also be taken out of commission until the late winter.

More sardine herring were landed here Monday than on any other one day this season. The Survey had 49 barrels, the Gladys five and the Hermy 10 barrels. All were placed in the freezers of the Central Wharf Cold Storage company.

Fish arrivals reported Monday were the Topsail Girl, 25,000; Fanny Reed, 10,000; Martha E. McLain, 2000; Iceland, 2000. Haddock are more plentiful than they have been, and are of excellent quality.

In the past six weeks, since the shore fishing began, sch. Lochinvar has stocked $4600. Of that amount, each of the crew of 12 men shared $214 net, a record that cannot be approached by any vessel around here and by but very few on the whole coast. From the first of the year up to September 25, when the shore fishing again began, the crew shared $916 apiece, so that they will do better than a thousand dollars a month before the year is out.

Salt Mackerel Imports.

A somewhat improved demand for imported mackerel is noted, says the Fishing Gazette. Norways are in fair demand, with prices about steady. Irish mackerel is somewhat easier. The last official report on Norwegian states that the catch up to October 19 yielded 48,520 barrels salted for export, compared with 50,269 barrels to same date in 1911 and 76,927 barrels for the same period of 1910. The fisheries were considered closed for the season as at October 19. For the week ending that date the fishing was 994 barrels, against 24 in 1911 and 302 in 1910.

The imports of salt mackerel at Boston for three days last week were 966 barrels and 300 tierces, and the total imports to date at that port are quoted as 15,942 barrels against 14,717 barrels at the same time last year. The Liverpool report on salt mackerel for the week to October 26 gave the shipments as 4,285 barrels to date 1911 autumn, 31,467 barrels; 1912 autumn, 12,482 barrels, and 1912 Norway, 6,177 barrels. For week in November 2 the shipments were 2200 barrels count 300 to 350 and fishing was reported as fair.

A correspondent at Cleggan, on the Galway coast in Ireland, states that the mackerel fishing in that section has been very poor this season, and that there has been unfavorable weather generally during October. The fish taken averaged about 380 to 420 to the 200-lb. barrel, but lately the average is nearer 360. On the other hand, recent reports from Dingle state that the fishing there has been very good.

Fulton Fish Market Notes.

The fish industry was seriously affected during the last week because of the heavy rain on Thursday, says the Fishing Gazette. Buying in both the fresh and salt water fish markets was light, and despite the fact that prices in nearly every case were extremely low, but little stock was moved.

Haddock was very low in price, with the exception of Thursday and Friday, when the quotation was five cents. Earlier in the week the price varied, two and one-half to three and one-half cents being the quotations.

Halibut was somewhat scarce and sold at fourteen cents during the entire week. Prices will likely be lower during the coming week, as three carloads are known to be on the way here, and more are expected. Eastern halibut brought seventeen to eighteen cents.

The supply of hake was somewhat short, prices being three and one-half to four and one-quarter cents per pound.

There were two trips of codfish, the total being 4200 fish, or about 35,000 pounds. Market cod sold at four to seven cents, the high figure ruling on Thursday. Steak cod was scarce on that day, the quotation being twelve cents per pound. On Wednesday sales were made at ten to eleven cents, while earlier in the week and on Friday the price was eight to ten cents.

Mackerel sold at thirty-five cents up to Friday, when twenty-eight cents was the price.

Tinker mackerel during the first part of the week sold at $16 to $17 per barrel. There were none to be had from Wednesday to Friday.

Scallops Scarce.

Scallop fishermen in Buzzard's Bay and other sections about Cape Cod are not meeting with ordinary success thus far this year in finding this shellfish and they threaten, unless there are violent gales along the coast within a short time it will not pay to search much longer this season.

According to the New Bedford (Mass.) "Times," many New Bedford and Fairhaven fishermen have already given up scalloping, not having been able to find any, and are storing their dredges.
