SEINERS LANDED HANDSOME FARES

OVER 200,000 POUNDS OF BLINKS LANDED AT THIS PORT THIS MORNING.

Seiners hit the blinks again yesterday, and this forenoon over 200,000 pounds of the fish had been brought to port. Splitters got the bulk of the fish, although a few of them, mostly large, were bought for shipment to outside markets. The receipts today came on top of a fairly good day yesterday, there having been four trips totalling 69,000 pounds brought down from Boston during the afternoon. The only fresh fish arrival was the offshore dragger Beauty St. Joseph with 50,000 pounds for the General Seafoods.

Cod Liver Oil.

We still have some of the important visitors with us who have been making such an extensive research on the possibilities for future business. Those who have left have been loud in their praise of the efforts being done by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to enhance the value of this work. There is no change reported in prices on the foreign markets. There has been an improvement in the shore fishery where the most of our oil is refined, but the season is advancing rapidly and we cannot expect a large production this season. Five hundred and twenty-five gallons were shipped during the week.—St. John's Trade Review.

WANTS ACTION AGAINST THE DOGFISH PEST

The codfishery of this country is being robbed of millions of dollars every year by not taking drastic measures to cope with the plague of dogfish that infest the waters all along our coastline, says the St. John's Trade Review.

In the Gulf of St. Lawrence the Quebec fisheries are having the problem of a white porpoise plague to contend with, but the government has decided to take vigorous action in the hope of either exterminating the pest or of driving them from the coast. Fifty boats manned by men armed with guns are instructed to shoot porpoises whenever seen. Airplanes are also employed to drop bombs on porpoise schools. It is hoped in this way that their numbers will be quickly reduced and the Quebec fishing area finally freed from this menace to fishing operations.

The time has arrived for our government to take some definite action in reducing the number of dogfish that infest our shores in increasing numbers each year. By the establishment of a reduction plant and placing a bounty on the dogfish, valuable fishmeal and fertilizer can be manufactured from the carcasses and an equally valuable oil extracted from the livers. The industry could be made a profitable investment but some bounty scheme that will encourage intensive fishing must be formulated.

N. F Lobster Market

Shipments of live lobsters from Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick shores of Northumberland Strait have been heavier than last year. The Boston and New York markets have been accepting all the shipping lobsters available along both sides of the strait. The canners have also been taking large quantities of the small lobsters.—St. John's Trade Review.

FISHING FLEET BLESSED.

Biloxi, Miss., Churches Hold Special Services.

Thousands of Catholics in Biloxi recently asked the blessings of God upon the fishing fleet of the city during the shrimp season, which has just opened. St. John's and St. Michael's church, both held open air services for the occasion, for the first time in the city's history.

An altar was erected in the open on the waterfront near both churches.

The ceremony at St. John's church was particularly impressive in that it was on the shores of Back Bay at the foot of the D'Iberville bridge, where the gallant French explorer, Pierre Le Moyne D'Iberville, landed two centuries ago, establishing the fishing colony which has grown to the modern city of Biloxi. With beautiful oaks in the background and the solemn white cross planted by the explorer in the midst of the scene, the fishermen and others gathered to ask God to bestow his blessings upon the fishing boats.
