LOCAL MARKET AGAIN GLUTTED

SEINING FLEET SWAMPED MARKET WITH BLINK MACKEREL YESTERDAY.

The largest day's receipts of mackerel this year, was reported yesterday when 23 of the fleet arrived with over 1,400,000 pounds of blink fish, taken anywhere from two miles east of Thacher's to Sequin, Maine. Late Saturday night the fleet began to arrive and by noon yesterday the harbor resembled one of the busiest week-days of the year. Boats were hurrying back and forth from wharf to wharf to sell their fish, and many of them had to take on extra ice, and lay over until this morning. A few "took a shot" and went to Boston, where the market had practically no mackerel today. Help was scarce, and even the temptation of a dollar an hour failed to bring out any large number of men to care for the fish. In some instances wharf foremen and even the owners themselves had to split the fish they were buying.

Fresh fish receipts were confined to two off-shore draggers with a total catch of 109,000 pounds of haddock, which went to the General Seafoods for filleting. Two fares of bluebacks arrived last night, and were disposed of to the local storage plants. The Canadian schooner Araucania with 300,000 pounds of salt fish from the Provinces, is taking out at the Frank C. Pearce wharf, having arrived late yesterday.
