MACKEREL STILL GLUT MARKET

FLEET MADE LARGE HAULS OFF HALIBUT POINT YESTREDAY.

Despite the fact that merchants are hard put to care for the tremendous amount of mackerel brought in here this week, local seiners still continue to swamp the markets with large fares of fish caught almost in our back yard.

Yesterday was no different than any day since the first of the week ond from noon until long after dark, the fleet came in the harbor singly and in pairs, scupper deep, with fish. The largest catch reported was that of the boat Mary A. She hailed for 140,000 pounds, but undoubtedly wll weigh out considerably more than that. Others ran fares from 100,000 pounds down to 10,000 pounds, but the majority of the fleet had big catches. Boat Angie and Mary worked three hours clearing mackerel from her seine, the fish, not over three or four inches long, meshing in a solid mass and almost carrying the twine to bottom.
