

For release By Major A.H. Thiessen
Oct. 18, 1940 Science Service Meteorologist

Tropical cyclones! An interesting feature of these very destructive storms, or hurricanes, is that in their centers (the "eye of the storm") the calm may be so complete that a match may be lighted in the open. This in spite of the fact that not so far away the wind may be lashing around at 60 to 100 miles an hour. Another interesting feature is that the temperature, humidity and wind are practically the same everywhere at the same distance from the center of the storm. The wind is especially dangerous, at sea due to its extreme gustiness, and on land because it carries along a load of debris.
